Let's Celebrate the Clydesdale Horse

Lanark Community Development Trust would like to celebrate Lanark's long history of being the home of the Clydesdale Horse which was first bred at a farm just across the Clyde from Lanark. We wish to erect a magnificent sculpture near Lanark Auction Market which has hosted Clydesdale Horse sales for over 140 years although Clydesdales were sold at Lanark Fair from the mid 1700s.

Our project will advance education by sparking local interest in the Clydesdale Horse and Lanark's agricultural heritage by providing a catalyst for the local community, local schools and visitors the chance to learn more about their heritage and the history of Lanark. This would be done through an engaging schools programme, creation of an information leaflet and photographic exhibition and of course, the sculpture. An artist's impression below shows an impressive visual of the proposed Clydesdale Horse Sculpture. (Image copyright of CodSteaks)

The estimated costs of this project are in the region of £30,000. Lanark Community Development Trust is seeking financial contributions of support and will also be approaching local capital funders. Any contribution or support, financial or otherwise, would be greatly appreciated to secure the success of this project.
